These helpless beings are with four regiments of infantry, two of caverietly coming on the heads of the Verb almost given out. At 2 o'clock it com-menced snowing, and snowed on our feet till morning. We then got other orders, and turned back, but did not get far till we were drawn up in line of battle. But the enemy did n't come, so we started for Black Water. After going six or seven miles, we met the rebels; but our commander thought they had about 12,000 men, so he gave an or ler to retreat, which we did on a double quick. When we got to the other road again, they had out off our retreat; so we had to take another road; went on till night, when we halted, built fires, spread our blankets on the wet ground, and laid down; being very tired, we were asleep al-most in a twinkling, but were soon chased up again by one of our pickets coming in as fast as his horse could run. He said the rebels were coming! We were given threequarters of an hour to put up our things, after which they put us in line of battle again. There we were kept standing until 5 o'clock; then started again; we thought we were going home, but were fooled.—
They sent us some force from camp, and we started out for a big fight. We went on till we got so tired that when halted we would lie down just like a drive of cattle
when tired. But they would n't let us rest much till we would be started again. If you had seen us you would have thought we looked like cattle taken to slaughter.— Thus they kept us going all the time till we got almost there, when we were given the command to cap our guns: then started again, but we did not get far, when we met some of our cavalry. They had two rebel prisoners. They looked first rate.—
When we got there, the rest of them had left. Where they went to we did not know. We then pitched our shelter tents, for it was raining awfully fast. We got a little bread and meat. The meat was raw, and we had no pans to fry it ; so we stock pointed sticks through the meat and held it over the fire till it was to ded. It was not very good, but we had to eat it.

About 4 o'clock in the evening we received orders to march back to camp yet. We Cotopixi, in 1738, threw its nery rockets

After backing about 5 miles, reports came that our retreat was cut off. So we had to take a different direction. We marched about 15 miles that afternoon, and then halted for the night. About 9 o'clock the pickets commenced to fire, and we were again drawn up in line of battle and slent on our arms all night. In the morning we were reinforced by 4.000 men, and then took a fresh start for Black Water. S. SUPREME COURT.

Some time in the latter part of the last of the United States. We remember dissuppressing the rebellion. Never since the tinctly that, when the appointment was an union of the States was there a period so nounced, the question was asked by almost everybody, "Who is Daniel F. Miller?"-He was a man unknown to fame, and the general impression was that "the honest Abe" had elevated to the highest legal tribunal of the nation an old crony of his with whom he had been accustomed to crack okes, during court term, in the western of the man from himself. If we cannot ascertain who he is we are at least informed tory to us. If Judge Miller is as sound a lawyer as he is a politician, we must give the President credit for having made one good appointment.

They said away with it, away with it, and crucify all vho advocate it. They farther said, leave the slave States go! We can do without them, and we will speedily reap the advin-tages of a separation. When the conservative element of the nation proclaimed itself for the Union, then the Abolitionists assumed that they were the war party, and denounced all others as rebel sympathizers. That the Abolitionists are in favor of prosecuting the war for their love of the Union. I am sure is not the case. Their object is to abolish slavery only, and if that should fail, they will again speedily raise their old civ of "fet the Union stide." Gentlemen, it is the mission of the Democratic party to save the Union. It has always been a loyal and national arty; it has ever upheld Constitutional law as the only safeguard of freedom. It was the party that hurled from power the authors of the alien and sedition laws, sixty years ago, and for all that period they guided our ship of State successfully and gloriously through the waves of civil commotion and the dangers of foreign wars. When I see Gen. Scott and Millard Fillmore, and Crittenden, and Ketchum, and Hunt, and all the old prominent Whigs of twenty-five years ago, now united at the polls with the Democracy, I can have no loubt that if the immortal sage of Ashland, that purest of patriots, most eloquent of orators, and wisest of statesmen. Henry t lay, were still alive and in our midst, he too would lend his voice in favor of that party whose witch words are the "Constitution as it is and "The Union, it must and.

shall be preserved." The Abolition leaders had so little iden of the character of the contest they were entering upon, that they proclaimed the war would be over in sixty days. They have had all the money they asked for, all the men they asked for, and yet the war wages with exampled fury at the end of 500 days. The result for the last 18 months demonstrates clearly the necessity of a universal change of rulers, and as old Whigs claim to love their country more than party hope they will all speedily unite under the Democratic flag, for the salvation of,

LETTER FROM A JUDGE OF THE U. POLITICS .- PATRIOTISM AND PAR- were required to vote for "the party" or TYISM.

The reckless course pursued by the parsummer President Lincoln appointed Dan-ty in power has thrown the country into a iel F. Miller a Judge of the Supreme Court of sentiment, and energy of co-operation in favorable to the ignoring of all party considerations, and securing a hearty and universal union in the patriotic work to be accomplished. When Sumter was bombarded and surrendered, the North rose up, as one man, with a zeal and energy which as-tonished the most sanguine. Party lines were obliterated and forgotten, and the districts. At length we learn something Government and the repression of the re-of the man from himself. If we cannot as, bellion. Democrats, in large majority, hastened to the rescue, totally regardless of the politics of the officers of governmentwhat he is—and the information is satisfac- the one all-absorbing and all-governing sentiment being to preserve the Union in its integrity, at all hazards. Prior to this, it had been the custom of apparty coming into power to vacate at least a majority of the places held, and fill them with their The Judge, in a letter dated "Keokuk, own peculiar friends. Whether this practice was best for the interests of the coun-tinction was imperatively demanded.

In order to perpetuate this unity, which was no nobly and patriotically offered by the Democrats in their every action, no party in power. The whole people should have been regarded as one, cooperating in accomplishing the same great end, viz: the maintenance of the Union, and the offices should have been distributed to worthy and competent men, without regard to their former political status. Had this course been pursued, the rebellion would have been brought to an end in half the time that has already elapsed. The opportunity to reward political partizins, however, was too tempting. The Abolition party has attained such power so seldem, that it must needs make the most of it, even at the expense of patriotism. Consequently, in all the civil offices Democrats were dismissed to a greater extent than probably was ever known before, and Abolitionists appointed. This was the case in the offices of the States, as well as the general government. As the war proceeded and brought with it the ne-cessity for the appointment of numerous office is to conduct the drafting, assessing and collecting taxes, and managing the vast machinery of the Government, from the incumbent who has lavished upon him n ten thousand dollar salary, down to the therein before the present war, or are such as were elected by the volunteer troops themselves at the period of their origina been in the army, and who on every occasion of service distinguished themselves, was unavoidable. There were numerous appointments, however, even of general officers, from civil life, of med who had no military experience to recommend them whatever, and these in every instance were members of the dominant party. All the appointments to Lieutenandes, Quartersters. Paymasters, Commissaries, &c. were of the same character. The sons of prominent men in the Abolition ranks, in and out of office have been character. Will you follow ? Were

To these the hundreds of millions of the public money have been appropriated most lavishly as a reward for party services. The policy of the dominant party has even extended farther. It is not nough to have secured to themselves and expiration of the present Presidential term.
As astute politicians, they know that a warof such magnitude must develope military men of the most elevated character, and that these may be set up by the people as our future rulers. Thus, Washington, Jackson, Harrison and Taylor became ou Chief Magistrates in consequence of their prominent military achievements. It is iot strange, then, that the men who have made this war a matter of interest to themselves and friends should inquire into the politics of every general who is likely to become very peneral who is likely to become very popular with the army and the people. If of their party they sustain him, if not they "crush him." This must be done cautiously by inuendo, stealthily and by strategy, lest the people see it and His command must be diminished, he must not be allowed to win astounding. crushing battles. He must be placed in a osition as to numbers of men and means, to render it impossible to venture an attack. He must be assigned to an important movement so as to raise expectations of a great and decisive battle, and yet prevented from carrying it into execution in a manner that attaches censure to him.— When the very citadel of the Republic is in imminent danger, once and again he, of all others, is called to save it from destruction. That accomplished and troops organized, the command is again taken away on pre-texts designedly created for the occasion. This is but the merest glance at the facts which might be adduced to prove that the men and the party now in power have worked unceasingly for party and party mainly, for the present and for the future. And yet they have had the effrontery all the while to ask Democrats to stand by and sunction and endorse all this. If a word of disapprobation was uttered, the Bastile was pointed at. To organize as a party to onpose them in their political and financia hicanery, was mon-trous-no epithet of disloyalty was sufficiently severs-but they vere the Government, the Union, the Country, and all who opposed them were cast out as

MAKE YOUR CHOICE.

There are now but two parties in the loyal States—the Democratic and the Abolition. Demagogues may and will deny it, but there is no disguising of the fact. The Republican party is as effectually dead and gone as Know Nothingism. The people have been from the beginning, forewarned of the ulterior designs of their treacherous leaders, and it is only necessary to cite the record to show how complete their change

The Republican Convention at Chicago adopted the following resolution, among-others, as the platform of their party: "Resolved, That the maintenance in io-ate of the rights of the States, and especially the right of each State to order and conrol its own domestic institutions according to its own judgment, exclusively, is essen-tial to the balance of power on which the rfection and endurance of our political abrie depends; and we denounce the lawes invasion, by an armed force, of the soil of any State or Territory, no matter under what pretext, as among the gravest of crimes."

President Lincoln, quoting this resolution, said:

"I now reiterate these sentiments, and in doing so I only press upon the public attention the most conclusive evidence of which the ca-e is susceptible. The property, peace and security of no section are to be in any wise endangered by the new incoming administration. I add to this, that all the protection which consistently with the Constitution and the laws can be given. will be given to all the States, when lawfully demanded, for whatever cause, as cheerfully to one section as to another."

And further: "I have no purpose di rectly or indirectly to interfere with the what might have been—what is. This war might have been prevented—the This war might have been prevented—the leading secessionists of the Cotton States might have been conquered without the firing of a gun, had our abolition rulers been wise and patriotic. The adoption by Congress, of the Crittenden Compromise, would have saved the Union, and prevented the vast and bootless sacrifice of blood and treasure which are being poured out on the black alter of Abolitionism. But, even af-ter the defeat of the Crittenden plan, by the Abolitionists, the war might have been pro vented and the Secessionists conquered by penceful means.

Had Mr. Lincoln been prompted by widom and true patriotism, secession might have been strangled in the house of its friends, and thus put out of the way forever. This is acknowledged by eminent Southern men and Secession leaders themelves. Our soldiers recently at Oxford, Mississippi, seized, at the residence of Hon. Jacob Thompson, Mr. Buchanan's Secretary of the Interior, copies of letters written by him to other individuals, among which was one containing the following significant

paragraph:
"In all I did, I acted on life-long convicions, and after I reached home [became] desirous that the severance which had be gun should then be perpetual a new desire for me. I feared that that blunderer. Lincoln, would turn and adopt the ideas of State rights. Had he done so. Secession would have been killed off forever. Had Lincoln, in his inaugural, boldly taken the ground that he would evacuate the forts of Sumter and Pickeys, and leave the seceded States to determine for themselves their own dest iny, the Border States would have been secured to the old Union beyond preadventure, and in all the seneded States there would have heen a Union party, which would have asserted its ascendancy in all our States. This feeling was deep and strong when I came home. But the very moment Lincoln suspended the Constitution and the laws, and undertook to raise armies and support na-vies without the aid of Congress, the feeling for separation became universal. Now, nothing but annihilation will bring these States into the old Union."

It is well known that, one time shortly before the attack on Fort Sumter, the Lincolr administration had resolved to evacuate the Southern forts and pursue the course which Mr. Thompson feared Mr. Lincoln might take. About this time, Mr. Seward, speaking for Mr. Lincoln, wrote to Mr. Adams an official letter, in which he argued against the theory of doercion. He said that "only an imperial or despotic government could have the right to subjugate disaffected and insurrectionary States. This Federal Republican system of ours," he said, "is the very one which is most unfli-ted for such a labor." No one will doubt that this, at that time, was the septiment of the Administration, and no man can successfully deny that this argument of Mr. Seward's was sound.

But Mr. Lincoln was, at length, induced to try coercion. After his organs had given out that the policy we have indicated was to be adonted by him, and after Mr. Seward, through an intermediary, had conferred with the Southern commissioners, whom he led to believe that Sumter was to be evacuated, a contemptible Yankee trick was resolved upon, by which the rebels were provoked to open fire on that fort, and thus the war policy of the Administration was proclaimed to the world. Then came a proclaimed from the President falling for 75,000 men for three months, with which number of men and within which time the rebellion was to be quelled. The rest is known to our readers-it is written in blood and proclaimed tothe world in the anguished cries of widows and orphans-and here we are, the South united and determined, the North divided, disgusted, discouraged, while the world is deour insane attempts to save a by first destroying it !- Democratic Leader

Patterson and I then agreed to meet on Monday.

We met at 5 o'clock, in Patterson's at Herr's, on M nday afternoon. Here Patterson told, me he had the $5,000 hand money locked up in a safe down stairs, but wanted me to see Simon again before paying it over to me. I insisted on the hand money. This I deemed necessary to keep up the delusion. We then parted to meet at the same place early the next morning. Immediately after breakfast on Tuesday, (the day of the election,) I met Patterson, according to agreement, at his room, Simon being present, lying on the bed, complaining of a disease of the howels. It was then desired that; I should see some Republican member of the Senate or House. who would be sent to me, and into m him of my willingness to vote for Cameron in case he was nominated. To this I made some pretended objection and demanded to know the necessity for it. Simon said it was this, that unless I did this they might think he just wanted their d-d nomination for effect, which was not true. He declared he would not have the nomination and a defeat for the whole Legisla. ture. So, of course, I consented, and the roting price was voluntarily raised $5,000. REACTION IN THE EASTERN STATES-There is hope of a change taking place in the Eastern States, in regard to the great political questions of the day. The Boston Courier says : "The time has come when an evident change of mind is beginning extensively to prevail throughout New England; and we shall be very much dispointed, if the day does not prove o be close at hand, when she will be found sitting, clothed and in her right mind.' The indications which give us this confidence cannot be mistaken; for they are within our own observation and experience. The people are awaking from past delusions and seek to know We remained there until dark, and then the truth; or they are rousing themselves from started for home, which we teached bepast indifference to consciousness of a perilous state of things ominous of direful evils to them and to future generations."

We went on till we got so tired that when halted we would be down just like a drove of cattle when tired. But they would n't let us rest much till we would be started again. If you had seen us you would have thought we looked like cattle taken to stangliter.— Thus they kept us going all the time till we got almost there, when we were given the command to cap our guns; then started again, but we did not get fur, when we met some of our cavalry. They had two rebel prisoners. They looked first rate -When we got there, the rest of them had left. Where they went to we did not know. Some time in the latter part of the last summer President Lincoln appointed Dantinctly that, when the appointment was announced, the question was asked by almost everybody, "Who is Daniel F. The recent elections have gladdened my heart more than I can find language to express, for I feel that by the success of the Democracy we shall have a speedy restoration of the Union and constitutional liberty, I am an old Clay Whig, as you all know, and when that party went down, I united with the Republicans, in the hope and belief that it yould succeed to all the loyal and national victues of the Whig party. and that we would have Whig principles and policy prevail under another name. -But I got more throughout that we should have civil war as a consequence of Rapublican sucecse; that the onblic treasury was to be plundered by wholesale; that "free soil" in loyal States should be covered with mer-tial law; that "free speech" should be chained in the dangeons of the bastile; that free homes should be sacked to desolution, and " free men " should be confined. in its mactical epplication to the negroes of the South, and the Abolition wing of the Republican party at the North. But how did the phrenzy of the Abolition leaders meet that proposition? They said away with it, away with it, and crucify all who advocate it. They farther said, leave the slave States go! That the Abolitionists are in favor of prosecuting the war for their love of the Union, I am sure is not the case. Their object is to abolish slavery only, and if that should fail, they will again speedily raise their old ove of " let the Union state" Gentlemen, it is the mission of the Dam-

The reckless course pursued by the party in power has thrown the country into a iel F. Miller a Judge of the Supreme Court of sentiment, and energy of co-operation in of the United States. We remember dis- suppressing the rebellion. Never since the union of the States was there a period so favorable to the ignoring of all party considerations, and securing a hearty and universal union in the patriotic work to be accomplished. When Sumter was bombarded and surrendered, the North rose up, as one man, with a zeal and energy which asbunal of the nation an old crony of his with | tonished the most sauguine. Party lines whom he had been accustomed to crack all-prevailing arder of the masses everywere obliterated and forgotten, and the where was directed to the defense of the bellion. Democrats, in large majority, hastened to the rescue, totally regardless of the polities of the officers of governmentwhat he is—and the information is satisfactile one all-absorbing and all-governing its integrity, at all hazards. Prior to this. it had been the custom of a party coming into power to vacate at least a majority of The Judge, in a letter dated "Keokuk, own peculiar friends. In order to perpetuate this unity, which was no nobly and patriotically offered by the Democrats in their every action, no distinction should have been made by the party in power. The whole people should have been regarded as one, co-operating in accomplishing the same great end, viz: the maintenance of the Union, and the offices should have been distributed to worthy and competent men, without regard to their former political status. Had this course been pursued, the rebellion would have been brought to an end in half the time that has already elapsed. The opportunity to reward political partizans, however, was too tempting. The Abolition party has attrined such power so seldom, that it must needs make the most of it, even at the expense of patriotism. Consequently, in all the civil offices. Democrats were dismissed to a greater extent than probably was ever known before, and Abolitionists appointed. This was the case in the offices of the States, as well as the general government. As the war proceeded and brought with it the necossity for the appointment of numerous officers to conduct the drafting, assessing and collecting taxes, and managing the vast muchinery of the Government, from the incumbent who has layished upon him a ten thousand doll ir salary, down to the happy possessor of the most insignificant of the thousand of offices (which have been created.) all are Abolitionists, vouched for war that it mean us. A large number of general officers had to be provided, and the selection of these from amongst those who had been in the army, and who on every occasion of service distinguished themselves, was unavoidable. There were numerous appointments, however, even of general officers, from civil life, of men who had no military experience to recommend them whatever, and these in every instance were members of the dominant party. All the appointments to Lieutenancies, Quartermasters, Paymasters, Commissaries, &c., made by the General or State Governments.

were of the same character. The sons of prominent men in the Abolition ranks, in and out of office, have been gratified to the full, whenever a desire for office was exbressed.

The interests of party have been served not only by appointment to office, but by awarding contracts. To these the hundreds of millions of the public money have been appropriated most lavishly as a reward for party services. The policy of the dominant party has even extended farther. It is not enough to have secured to themselves and friends present political and pecuniary advantages, but a programme has been laid down to seeme the political power after the expiration of the present Presidential term. As astate politicians, they know that a war of such magnitude must develope military men of the most elevated character, and that these may be set up by the people as our future rulers. Thus, Washington, Jackson, Harrison and Taylor became our Chief Magistrates in consequence of their prominent military achievements. It is not strange, then, that the men who have made this war a matter of interest to themselves and friends should inquire into the politics of every general who is likely to become very popular with the army and the people. If of their party they sustain the people. him, if not they "crush him." This must be done cautiously, by innendo, stealthily and by strategy, lest the people see it and rebel. His command must be diminished, he must not be allowed to win astounding crushing battles. He must be placed in a position as to numbers of men and means, io render it impossible to venture an attack. He must be assigned to an important movement so as to raise expectations of a great and decisive battle, and yet prevented from carrying it into execution in a manner that attaches censure to him,-When the very citadel of the Republic is in imminent danger, once and again he, of all others, is called to save it from destruction That accomplished and troops organized the command is again taken away on pretexts designedly created for the occasion. This is but the merest glance at the facts which might be adduced to prove that the men and the party now in power have worked unceasingly for party and party mainly, for the present and for the future. And yet they have had the effrontery all the while to ask Democrats to stand by and sanction and endorse all this. If a word of disapprobation was uttered, the Bastile was

The Navy Yards, Arsenals, and other places were visited and haraugued, and thus in Philadelphia alone about ten thousand votes were coerced, which gave them a meagre majority in the city. The substantial, free and intelligent vote of the city was cast against them, and wherever men, in all the States voting, were left to their sober judgment, large Demo-cratic majorities were had. This is but the legitimate result of the dominant party's own doings. Never in all the lifetime of this republic was there a crisis in which patriotism might have been so fitly exercised for the public welfare, and never one in which the demon of party has so ruinously and ingloriously appropriated to himself the elements of our country's giory, -Democratic Leader.

MAKE YOUR CHOICE,

There are now but two parties in the loyal States-the Democratic and the Abolition, Demagogues may and will deny it, but here is no disguising of the fact. The Republican party is as effectually dead and gone as Know Nothingism. The people have been from the beginning, forewarned of the ulterior designs of their treacherous leaders, and it is only necessary to cite the record to show how complete their change of base.

The Republican Convention at Chicago dopted the following resolution, among others, as the platform of their party:

"Resolved. That the maintenance invioate of the rights of the States, and especially the right of each State to order and conrol its own domestic institutions according to its own judgment, exclusively, is essential to the balance of power on which the perfection and endurance of our political labric depends; and we denounce the lawless invasion, by an armed force, of the soil of any State or Territory, no matter under what pretext, as among the gravest of crimes.

President Lincoln, quoting this resolution, said: "I now reiterate these sentiments, and in doing so I only press upon the public attention the most conclusive evidence of which the case is susceptible. The property, peace and security of no section are to be in any wise endangered by the now incoming administration. I add to this, that all the protection which consistently with the Constitution and the laws can be given, will be given to all the States, when lawfully demanded, for whatever cause, as cheerfully to one section as to another."

And further: "I have no purpose directly or indirectly to interfere with the institution of slavery, where it exists. I behere I have no lawful right to do so." Upon such professions as these, the Republicans got into power. Their subsequent acts and declarations show that they obtained the suffrages of the people under fulse pretense. Thad, Stevens, their ac-knowledged leader in the House of Representatives, declared, "This Union shall gusted, discouraged, while the world is denever with my consent be restored under the Constitution as it is with slavery to be protected by it." The tenor of all their specches in Congress is about the same.-To cap the climax, "Honest Old Abe" with stolid indifference to his official oath and repeated pledges, issues a proclamation, to free the negroes. He stands convicted by United States service are to be seen struthis party, and out of his own mouth, of an offence, ranked "among the gravest of crimes." This party, truly, has been saving one thing, and doing another. Lincoln is now in the embrace of the radicals, and the eaders and office seekers are busy in the offort to carry over the conservative portion of the party into the ranks of Abolitionism. Knowing full well, that their political selection depends upon a successful transfer, they will move Heaven and earth to that end, and following an illustrious precedent, "invoke the Gracious favor of dmighty God." Will you follow? Will you close your eyes to the light of history, and be indiffer-ent to the teachings and warnings of Washngton, Jefferson, Clay, Webster and the long line of departed Statesmen, who always regarded Abolitionism as the most dampable heresy, and the ascendency of a sectional party the death-knell of the Union? If you desire to be conservative, to be on the side of your country, you must ake your position with the Democracy, for the Abolitionists have commenced a crusade against the institutions, the laws and the Constitution of the country. Make your choice, with a view of the tremendous responsibility involved in it .- Somerset Dem.

But, even afer the defeat of the Crittenden plan, by the Abolitionists, the war might have been prevented and the Secessionists conquered by peaceful means. Had Mr. Lincoln been prompted by wisdom and true patriotism, secession might have been strangled in the house of its riends, and thus put out of the way forever. This is acknowledged by eminent Southern men and Secession leaders themselves. Our soldiers recently at Oxford, Mississinpi, seized, at the residence of Ron. Jacob Thompson, Mr. Buchanan's Secretary of the Interior, copies of letters written by him to other individuals, among which was one containing the following significant

paragraph:

"In all I did, I acted on life-long convic-tions, and after I reached home [became] lesirous that the severance which had be un should then be perpetual—a new desire for me. I feared that that blunderer, Lincoln, would furn and adopt my ideas of State rights. Had he done so. Secession would love been killed off forever. Had Lincoln, in his inaugural, boldly taken the ground that he would exacuate the forts of Sumter and Pickens, and leave the seceded States to determine for themselves their own dest iny. the Border States would have been secured to the old Union beyond preadventure, and in all the secoded States there would have been a Union party, which would have asserted its ascendancy in all our States. This feeling was deep and strong when I came home. But the very moment Lincoln suspended the Constitution and the laws, and undertook to raise armies and support na-vies without the aid of Congress, the feeling for separation became universal. Now, nothing but annihilation will bring these States into the old Ucion." It is well known that, one time shortly before the attack on Fort Sumter, the Lincoln administration had resolved to evacuate the Southern forts and pursue the course which Mr. Thompson feared Mr. Lincoln might take. About this time, Mr. Seward, speaking for Mr. Lincoln, wrote to Mr. Adams an official letter, in which he argued egainst the theory of coercion. He said that "only an imperial or despotic government could have the right to subjugate disaffected and insurrectionary States. This Federal Republican system of ours," he said, "is the very one which is most unfitted for such a labor." No one will doubt that this, at that time, was the sentiment of the Administration, and no man can successfully deny that this argument of Mr.

But Mr. Lincoln was, at length, induced to try coercion. After his organs had given out that the policy we have indicated was to be adopted by him, and after Mr. Seward, through an intermediary, had conferred with the Southern commissioners, whom he led to believe that Sumter was to be evacuated, a contemptible Yankee trick was resolved upon, by which the rebels were provoked to open fire on that fort, and thus the war policy of the Administration was proclaimed to the world. Then came a proclamation from the President calling for 15,000 men for three months, with which number of men and within which time the rebellion was to be quelled.

Seward's was sound.

Coming Events.—We notice that some very knowing wiscacres are already busy in predicting what may occur, during the year upon which we have just entered.—Without countenancing their correctness we insert the following specimens of their smartness. It is asserted that the year 1863 will be a very eventful one-to every maiden who gets married. Throughout the whole course of the year, whenever the moon wance the night becomes dark .-Whoever falls in love this year will think his sweetheart an angel-and whoever gets married will find out if it is true or not .-He that loses his hair this year will be bald --- and he that loses his wife will certainly be a widower.
